REFEREEING AND THE LAWS OF THE GAME

Although there are minimal alterations to the Laws for the 2012–13 season there is one which is of fundamental importance and which brings technology to the playing of the game for the first time. This historical change was announced on 5 July 2012 when the President of FIFA Sepp Blatter announced that following a nine months test process started in August 2010 the International Board (IFAB) and FIFA unanimously approved the introduction of goal-line technology. Two variants of the technology were trialled, namely Hawkeye and GoalRef, and the companies installing the systems have to test them at each stadium before they can be utilised in competitive matches. IFAB was at pains to point out that the technology will only be used for goal-line decisions and for no other areas of the game. Only the referee will be notified of the decision made as to whether the ball has crossed the goal-line and he/she will still be the sole arbiter as to whether to award or disallow a goal. The decision to implement the technology will necessitate Law Changes particularly amendments to Law 1 (field of play); Law 2 (the ball); Law 5 (the Referee) and Law 10 (method of scoring). The Premier League has indicated they may try if possible to commence running the new systems by the start of 2013 even though it would be mid-season. Decisions will have to be made as to whether one or both systems will be utilised.

The verdict on the technology was made despite strong attempts by UEFA to have the decision delayed for further consideration and to continue with the additional assistants system (AAR) currently employed throughout European competitions. There was some consolation for UEFA in that after a two year experiment, AAR was held to be satisfactory enough for IFAB to universally approve their future use. As a result of this decision the Laws will again need amendments and a separate section inserted regarding their use. The system has been strongly criticised in the past on the grounds amongst other things that nobody other than the referee knows whether they have made a decision or not and is still susceptible to error. A short Law change is now needed, following the introduction of technology, which will mean the approval and permission of communication equipment between match officials details of which will also be inserted into the Laws. However the term "radio equipment" has been replaced with the more modern term "electronic equipment".

There is one vital change to the playing of the game relating to the "drop ball" insofar as in future if an uncontested drop ball is kicked into an opponent's goal, a goal kick is awarded whereas if it is kicked directly into the team's own goal a corner kick is awarded. This should prevent unintentional or unsporting goals occurring over which the referee has no control.

There are also some minor changes to the Laws on handball where the word "blatantly" has been removed; now where tie-up tape is applied externally to the socks it must be the same colour as the rest of the sock; vanishing spray to mark out where defenders stand at free kicks has been sanctioned provided it is agreed by the relevant association, and associations can also designate in their rules how many substitutes can be nominated up to 12 in number but only three can still be used.

IFAB further agreed to allow temporarily during a trial period, the wearing of headscarves. The colour, material and design which are to be allowed will be fully defined and confirmed during their Annual Business Meeting (ABM) to be held in October 2012 in Glasgow, Scotland. This decision removes the ban imposed in 2007 on the grounds of safety. Further consideration will also be given at the ABM of what is known as the "triple punishment" consisting of fouls, misconduct and sending-off offences; although no clues were given as to what alterations if any will be implemented. They also usefully agreed to discuss how they can improve consultation with the game at large.

The FA has in 2012 revised their "Laws of the Game for Small-Sided Football" which has been done to better reflect the way this type of football is being currently played by over 1.2 million adults in this country.

By common consent the officiating at Euro 2012 was especially good apart from one goal-line blip. The referee for the Final between Italy and Spain was Pedro Proenca of Portugal who also refereed the UEFA Champions League Final. Wolfgang Stark of Germany refereed the UEFA Europa Cup Final; whilst domestically the referee for the men's FA Cup Final was Phil Dowd; the womens FA Cup Final went to Natalie Walker; the referee for the Carling Cup Final was Mark Clattenberg and for the women's Premier League Cup Final – Paul Forrester.

THE THINGS THEY SAID . . .

While he may well be a Scottish Knight, Sir Alex Ferguson knows how much his English players at Old Trafford are worth to the national team:
"The FA may realise one day who has produced more players for their country than any other club in the world. Maybe they will get some joy from it at some point in their lives and realise how important we are to England. You understand? They treat us like s."

Richard Scudamore would seem to have sorted out just how much technology is needed to improve the game:
"A ball crossing a line is a matter of fact. Anything else is a matter of opinion."

Arsene Wenger has his definite views on the purchase of players:
"We are not in a supermarket where you go to a shelf and you ask where are the centre backs or the strikers?"

The Arsenal manager also has his say on the answer to divers:
"But a dive in the box sometimes . . . I think sometimes you see it properly after the game. If an obvious dive is punished by a three-match ban, the players would not do it any more."

If the words uttered by Fabio Capello are symptomatic of the malaise affecting football management, just where are the teams who have no interest in winning?
"For my whole life as a manager I've been under fire. The teams I coached wanted to win every game."

On departure from his role as England manager following the row over John Terry, Fabio Capello said:
"They insulted me and damaged my authority. What really hit me and forced me to take this decision was the much vaunted Anglo-Saxon sense of justice, that everyone is innocent until proven guilty."

In the wake of the summer riots in England, PFA chief executive Gordon Taylor gave his views on how football could respond in a correct manner:
"Clubs and players need to show the best example in these difficult times."

The PFA CEO on the question of salaries:
"The game is about players. People don't complain about Brad Pitt's wages."

Our own Wayne Rooney added to the various comments:
"These riots are nuts. Why would people do this to their own country? Stop, please."

Ricardo Teixeira, the head honcho of the Brazilian FA, has been a critic of England and surprisingly, too, his own national team's most famous footballer, Pele. He even failed to invite him to the World Cup draw until the government intervened. The famous one responded:
"This is not good for Brazil. Some people talk more than they know. With Ricardo we always have some confusion or misunderstanding, when he does interviews."

Brevity is often the best policy. Liverpool's US owner John W. Henry obviously thinks so:
"Mr Ferguson is a genius." (Presumably he meant Sir Alex.)

Sir Alex Ferguson admitted he was "really emotional" after Manchester United marked his 25th anniversary in charge by renaming Old Trafford's North Stand and commissioning a statue in his honour:
"I couldn't believe and I didn't expect that. I have to thank the club because it is fantastic of them to do that. I am really proud."

After Harry Redknapp was cleared in court of tax-evasion charges he was understandably emotional:
"My family have been put through it these last five years and I am looking forward to getting home and getting away from all this. It has been a nightmare. This is a case that should never have come to court, it is unbelievable. It was a unanimous decision, absolutely, unanimous, there was no case to answer."

Rio Ferdinand with a view on racism:
"Tell me I have just read Sepp Blatter's comments on racism in football wrong. I feel stupid for thinking that football was taking a leading role against racism."

After arguably the most exciting and dramatic end to any championship when Manchester City snatched victory from the famous jaws of defeat there were many opinions of the outcome. City manager Roberto Mancini said:
"It was a crazy finish. After this, I feel 90 years old! I am very proud of my players. To beat a strong team like United is fantastic and we deserve a title."

Sir Alex Ferguson described the climax as "cruel" and said it would take a century for City to catch up on comparable histories with Manchester United and affirmed the depth of talent at Old Trafford:
"It is a good experience for them even if it's a bad one. We have a lot of young players and they will be around in five, six or ten years at United."

Other views on the 20th Premier League wrap-up included:
"I think watching or hearing about football today is not good for my heart." (Fabrice Muamba)

"It was an unbelievable afternoon of football. Now City can go on and dominate for a while." (Alan Shearer)

"What an end to the season and what a league we play in – no other like it in the world." (Phil Neville)

"I played in that game against Arsenal at Anfield in 1989. This was far more dramatic." (Alan Hansen)

Sam Allardyce was generous in his praise of opponents Blackpool as West Ham United won back Premier League status:
"I told you it was going to be difficult. Blackpool were equally as good as us. But our finishing power counted in the end. We managed to swing it right at the death."

Chelsea won the shoot-out against Bayern Munich to take the Champions League trophy despite just one corner (from which they scored) against the Germans' 20 and being out-shot in the match 34 to nine. But hero marksman Didier Drogba said:
"I believe a lot in destiny. It was written a long time ago that we would win but we did not know it and we had to believe. This team is amazing. I want to dedicate this to the managers and players we had before."

Chelsea manager Roberto Di Matteo was mindful that it might have been his swansong at Stamford Bridge:
"I want a holiday. It's not important. I respect whatever is decided. We have players that have a big heart and passion and motivation and desire."

Before the Euro 2012 finals former England international Sol Campbell was mindful of the racist abuse that could be faced in Poland and the Ukraine:
"Stay at home, watch it on TV. Don't even risk it . . . because you could end up coming back in a coffin."

Mario Balotelli, Manchester City and Italy, put his own perspective on the issue of racism:
"I'm black and proud to have African roots. I think I'm lucky to be black. People say about me that I'm a black boy who has fun, earns money and has girls. It's not like that. It's too easy to judge people through what you see."

Caught up in the latest match-fixing scandal to hit Italian football, Domenico Criscito, dropped from Cesare Prandelli's squad, protested:
"I have nothing to do with this. I was only out for dinner with some Genoa fans."

In an unfortunate reminder of the comedy series "Allo, Allo", Germany's assistant coach had to apologise for suggesting:
"The Germans should wear steel helmets and stand tall." (His name: Herr Flick!)

The press did its best to predict trouble in the Spanish camp with Real Madrid and Barcelona players likely to be at odds with each other. Sergio Busquets summed it up:
"It is difficult to be friends with someone who does not play with you every day of the year. There is no problem. We can talk or have a drink. We are all here for the same reason."

On the eve of the Group D decider in Euro 2012 being played between England and Ukraine, Michel Platini again reiterated his objection to goal-line technology being introduced, claiming the effectiveness of five officials. Alas subsequent events overshadowed his remarks as there was a clear instance of the ball crossing the line without a goal being awarded:
"With five, officials see everything. They don't take decisions without being fully aware. There's also a uniformity of refereeing. For example, they don't call unintentional handballs. That uniformity has led to more flowing football. Goal-line technology isn't a problem."

Gary Neville, who went from being England's No.2 to becoming England's No.2 (!), remarked on the unusual lack of hype pre-Euro 2012:
"There seems to be the lowest expectation I've ever known going into a tournament but the fact is, in tournaments gone past, it's been fine lines."

Only a matter of days later with England about to meet Italy in the quarter-finals, his attitude changed dramatically:
"I think there are four or five players in our squad who I genuinely believe would be in any team in this tournament – even Spain. When I look at Wayne Rooney, Joe Hart, John Terry, Ashley Cole and Joleon Lescott, you'd go a long way to find players at this tournament who are better in those positions than they are."

England captain Steven Gerrard was caught up in the realisation that after years of frustration the Italian game could prove a watershed:
"Since I made my England debut I've dreamed of doing well in these major tournaments. Up to now it hasn't happened. I'm hoping it'll be different this time. To lose any quarter-final match hurts so much."

England's most capped goalkeeper Peter Shilton gave advice to Joe Hart in case there was a penalty shoot-out against Italy:
"Wait as long as you can on the line and be as big as you can and fill as much of the goal as you can. The moment you dive, there's a large space left for him to score. If you stay still, arms out, occupying space, he's got to hit the corners of the target to beat you." (Needless to say Joe was unable to save one.)

Roy Hodgson commenting on the aftermath of being knocked out by Italy in the post-match penalty shoot-out:
"When we took it to penalties I was hoping this was our tournament but the practising didn't help. I can't fault the players as a lot of them were running on empty."

Post-tournament criticism of Wayne Rooney was answered by the England manager:
"We haven't noticed anything with his fitness levels. But of course I think we put a lot of expectations on him. He certainly tried very hard, but he didn't have his best game. I think he would admit that, but I don't think fitness itself was a particular factor."

Former England manager Fabio Capello had a sarcastic swipe at the England striker in a reference to Sir Alex Ferguson, Rooney's boss at Manchester United:
"After watching the last game, I think that Rooney understands only the Scottish accent."

On the eve of the Euro 2012 final, Spain's midfield maestro Xavi responded to the criticism that his team's no-strike formation was boring:
"Fans identify with us, we enjoy it, people the world over love it. For us, not only is it not boring – but we are having fun on the pitch."

BLUE SQUARE PREMIER 2011–12

Fleetwood Town came within a win of overtaking Crawley Town's record-breaking 105 points. As in 2010–11 the champions were well-placed in the financial field as well as the playing area. They also added to the coffers with a handsome transfer fee for one of their players.

With the Blue Square Premier League now awash with former Football League clubs each year, the competition to return to their former status is producing increased intensity. And with one automatic slot for the title winners and just one through the play-offs, the competition is formidable.

Neither Lincoln City nor Stockport County, the two clubs relegated, were able to finish in either play-off contention or maintain any kind of challenge. Indeed both had concerns over staying out of the bottom four.

Mid-way through September with almost a quarter of the fixtures completed, it was Luton Town leading the field unbeaten after ten matches, though they had drawn five of them. At this stage their advantage was merely on goal difference and in fact there was a four-way tie on the same number of points! The prospects for a close campaign seemed reasonable with Wrexham, Gateshead and Fleetwood bracketed with them.

Mansfield Town were fifth, just a point adrift again ahead of the surprise packets thus far in newcomers Braintree Town level on points. AFC Telford United were in the bottom half along with Alfreton Town. Back in the Conference arena were Ebbsfleet United, but at this juncture third from the bottom.

By mid-November and with twenty matches already taken into account, the picture was beginning to take on a different slant. Wrexham and Fleetwood in that order were five points ahead of the next club Southport, followed by Cambridge United and York City in the play-off zone and Gateshead just outside it. Luton had slipped to seventh.

The bottom four were Hayes & Yeading, Newport County, Alfreton and Bath City, with Grimsby Town, Kettering Town, Stockport, AFC Telford and Lincoln City hovering just above them. As far as Kettering were concerned, they had moved into Rushden's old ground but were experiencing financial problems of their own as were Darlington, then in mid-table.

Come mid-February and with most clubs having completed 32 Blue Square matches, it was interesting to note that ten of the fourteen ex-League clubs were in the top half, the remaining four just above the relegation foursome of Alfreton, Kettering and Hayes with Bath still at the foot.

However, one of those just out of the danger areas was Darlington now in administration and with ten points deducted. There were also strong indications that neither they nor Kettering might finish the season.

Fleetwood were now top but Wrexham had a game in hand. Luton, York and Southport came next. Grimsby had improved to be in sixth position while Braintree had slipped to the middle of the table.

After 41 games Fleetwood had opened a nine-point lead over Wrexham, who still had that game in hand. Mansfield had climbed to third with York fourth and Southport still fifth. In the cellar area, Kettering had joined Darlington with a points deduction of three points over a fixture problem, that pair coupled with Hayes and Bath still last.

Fleetwood hoisted the century with a win at York after Wrexham had lost at home to Alfreton. Kidderminster Harriers had taken the last play-off spot having been thereabouts most of the season. On 10 April Fleetwood entertained Wrexham with a crowd of 4,994 at their Highbury ground. Wrexham managed a 1-1 draw despite finishing with ten men, but it was certainly their last chance of overhauling the leaders, 11 points behind. And it was Fleetwood's 100th League goal.

Yet Fleetwood did it the hard way. They then drew with Lincoln and had to rely the following day on Wrexham failing to beat Grimsby Town before being crowned. Mansfield, York and Luton reached the play-offs, York emerging to join Fleetwood in the Football League. Hayes, Darlington, Bath and Kettering were relegated.

Tenth for Forest Green Rovers was an improvement but 13th was disappointing for Barrow, one above Ebbsfleet while 18th was less than Tamworth might have imagined.

REVIEW OF THE SCOTTISH SEASON 2011–12

Glasgow Rangers no longer in existence, the newco Rangers not allowed to take their place in the Scottish Premier League and forced to go cap in hand to the Scottish Football League for clemency and acceptance. Such was the situation after the second half of 2011–12 as it resulted in the complete demise of one of the two most famous Scottish clubs. Just how such a calamity caused by financial misdemeanour and mismanagement could have occurred is not for discussion at this time.

Docked ten points for entering administration there was no question of relegation. Indeed Rangers still finished second, 11 points ahead of third placed Motherwell. Naturally Celtic had little more to do than tread carefully 20 points in front at the finale, to end Rangers' three successive titles in almost bizarre circumstances. Celtic had, however, lost in the final of the Scottish Communities League Cup to Kilmarnock, who already in mid-March were struggling to make the cut for the top six in the table. Moreover the William Hill Scottish Cup was disputed between the two Edinburgh clubs Hearts and Hibs; a rare meeting at this stage of the competition, the last dating back to before the turn of the 20th century.

Once again Scottish domestic football is at a crisis point. It has an unsettling effect on everything. The national team has to concentrate on qualifying for World Cup 2014 in Brazil having missed out on Euro 2012. Placed third at the halfway stage behind leaders Spain and the Czech Republic, the Scots though with a match in hand of all of their rivals, were five points adrift in what was considered a tough group.

A draw with the Czechs and a decent display and narrow defeat against Spain was an encouraging sign, but not sufficient to break into the top two qualifiers for Poland and the Ukraine in the summer. Yet again in a matter of priorities, the situation at home has to be put in order.

Leaving out the drama of Rangers, the SPL still itches for expansion into two divisions. Such an event would throw the Scottish Football League into a spin. The summer months before the start of a new season are not the time for snap decisions, yet it seems inevitable that they will occur.

As to 2011–12, with the title moving to Parkhead, the other concerns homed in on places for Europe. Yet it was Celtic's devastating spell of 17 consecutive wins to the end of February which set them apart from everyone else.

They called upon the services of no fewer than 32 players, none of them ever present and only one of whom managed to miss just one league game. Hooper was also the top scorer with 24 League goals including all five in the tail end match against Hearts. Only four times did opponents prevent Celtic from scoring a goal.

Motherwell were a pretty consistent choice for third place, though significantly losing all four games to Celtic and only managing one draw with Rangers! Dundee United showed greater staying power for finishing fourth, noticeably improving in the second half of the campaign.

Hearts, not out of the top six from the end of August, had their best two runs in spells of five without defeat and earned their reward in the Scottish Cup that highlighted the dire season endured by their Edinburgh rivals Hibernian. Hibs, within a couple of weeks of the final matches were not entirely certain of avoiding relegation. Hibs' only second home win was against relegated Dunfermline Athletic. Only Inverness Caley Thistle, bottom at the end of November, seemed at one time to be seriously involved in the demotion battle, though Aberdeen would not have been delighted with ninth position, were at the bottom early December and scored only 36 goals.

St Johnstone finished sixth and but for just one point from the last seven games might have been higher placed, leaving Killie as mentioned in the bottom six group along with St Mirren.

Kilmarnock paid dearly for beating Celtic in a cup final; The Hoops won 6-0 at Rugby Park. They did win 1-0 away to Rangers on 18 February, the last occasion in sixth spot. Draw specialists St Mirren divided the spoils 16 times including five times in succession. Goals, too, were scarce, 39 in total. Indeed apart from Celtic and Rangers, scoring was low everywhere. The average number of goals per game was 2.06, an uninspiring average and a third of teams overall were unable to score at least one goal in fixtures played.

There was no joy in European competitions. Rangers disappointing and Celtic, given a reprieve by the banishment of their opponents, were unable to take advantage of the situation (see European Review).

Promoted to the SPL, Ross County romped away with the Scottish League Championship. Only that games in hand might have produced an upset prevented them gaining the prize much earlier. Thirty-five matches undefeated was an outstanding performance. Queen of the South suffered relegation, Cowdenbeath won the automatic slot and Dumbarton impressively won their play-off matches to move up while Ayr United also lost First Division status.

Long-time Third Division leaders Stranraer had again slipped away but recovered in the play-offs only to lose on penalties in the final that enabled Albion Rovers to retain Second Division status. Stirling Albion suffered the drop, to be replaced by Third Division winners Alloa Athletic.

Season 1921–22 – only 1 club promoted, 3 clubs relegated. 15pts deducted for failing to field a team.

Scottish League Championship wins: Rangers 54, Celtic 43, Aberdeen 4, Hearts 4, Hibernian 4, Dumbarton 2, Dundee 1, Dundee U 1, Kilmarnock 1, Motherwell 1, Third Lanark 1.

At the end of the 1993–94 season four divisions were created assisted by the admission of two new clubs Ross County and Caledonian Thistle. Only one club was promoted from Division 1 and Division 2. The three relegated from the Premier joined with teams finishing second to seventh in Division 1 to form the new Division 1. Five relegated from Division 1 combined with those who finished second to sixth to form a new Division 2 and the bottom eight in Division 2 linked with the two newcomers to form a new Division 3. At the end of the 1997–98 season the nine clubs remaining in the Premier Division plus the promoted team from Division 1 formed a breakaway Premier League. At the end of the 1999–2000 season two teams were added to the Scottish League. There was no relegation from the Premier League but two promoted from the First Division and three from each of the Second and Third Divisions. One team was relegated from the First Division and one from the Second Division, leaving 12 teams in each division. In season 2002–03, Falkirk were not promoted to the Premier League due to the failure of their ground to meet League rules. Inverness CT were promoted after a previous refusal in 2003–04 because of ground sharing. At the end of 2005–06 the Scottish League introduced play-offs for the team finishing second from the bottom of Division 1 against the winners of the second, third and fourth finishing teams in Division 2 and with a similar procedure for Division 2 and Division 3.

From 1946–47 to 1955–56 the two divisions were known as A and B. A division 3 had existed for three years from 1923–24 and was revived for three more seasons from 1946–47 as Division C when it included reserve teams.

WELSH FOOTBALL 2011–12

Another eventful season was inevitably overshadowed by the inexplicable death of Gary Speed in November at the age of 42.

When the national manager was found hanged at his home, it was assumed he had committed suicide. The internet, but not the press, was suddenly awash with unfounded and outlandish rumours and the subsequent inquest, in reaching a narrative verdict, failed to shed much more light on his death.

The timing of Speed's demise was bizarre: the team had won half of his 10 games in charge since he'd replaced John Toshack – including four of the last five which had returned Wales to the top 50 in FIFA's world rankings. He had just finalised the 2014 World Cup qualifying fixture list and, despite experiencing domestic difficulties, he seemed in good spirits during an appearance on BBC TV's Football Focus the day before he died.

As speculation about Speed's death continued, the Welsh FA moved sure-footedly but sensitively to appoint his successor and it was no surprise when Chris Coleman, another much respected former international in his early forties, was chosen. Wales lost 1-0 to Costa Rica in an emotional memorial match for Speed in Cardiff in February and went down 2-0 to Mexico in New Jersey in Coleman's first game in charge in May.

Swansea City once again became the victims of their own success after finishing an impressive 11th on their return to the top flight. In 2009, they lost manager Roberto Martinez to Wigan and, three years later, Brendan Rodgers was lured away to Liverpool. The Northern Irishman's determination to stick to his passing principles resulted in a number of notable victories – especially over Manchester City and Arsenal at the Liberty Stadium – but a total of 44 goals in 38 games suggested that although possession may be nine-tenths of the law, it doesn't add up to much in a game of football without an end product. Like Rodgers' favourite team, Barcelona, Swansea might consider developing a Plan B or even a Plan C – although that seems unlikely following the appointment of the ex-Barcelona and Real Madrid player, Michael Laudrup, as their new manager.

For the second successive season, Cardiff City reached the play-offs but missed out on the final at Wembley. New manager Malky Mackay deserves huge credit for taking his rebuilt squad to the semi-finals but the Bluebirds were ultimately outclassed by a more experienced West Ham side in both games. Their supporters had already visited the home of English football though when Cardiff turned in a spirited performance against Liverpool in the Carling Cup final – only to lose on penalties. A controversial rebranding – including the club's main colours being changed from blue to red – was introduced in June as part of a further £100 million investment by its Malaysian owners as they seek to increase Cardiff's appeal in the Far East. Following the death of former Cardiff manager Eddie May in April, they agreed for his ashes to be scattered at the club's new memorial park.

It was déjà vu for Wrexham too when, with manager Dean Saunders having left for Doncaster in September, their automatic promotion campaign stalled as Fleetwood won the Blue Square Premier title. Like last year, the Red Dragons couldn't muster enough firepower to beat Luton in the play-off semi-finals – with player-manager Andy Morrell admitting that a lacklustre first-half performance in the first leg had sealed their fate – just as it had a year earlier. Despite the disappointment, everyone involved with the club must be congratulated on helping to secure its financial future under the auspices of the Wrexham Supporters' Trust. At the other end of the table, Newport County struggled for most of the season – first under Anthony Hudson and then Justin Edinburgh. The former Spurs defender guided the Exiles to safety before taking them to the FA Trophy Final at Wembley where they lost 2-0 to York. Colwyn Bay finished comfortably in mid-table in their first season in the Blue Square North while Merthyr Town secured back-to-back promotions by winning the Toolstation Western League Premier Division title and moving up to the Southern League Division One.

European football provided little joy for Welsh clubs with Bangor suffering a record 10-0 defeat in the second leg of their Champions League tie against HJK Helsinki as they lost 13-0 on aggregate. In the Europa League, The New Saints were knocked out 8-3 by Midtjylland of Denmark, Llanelli went down 6-2 to Georgia's Dinamo Tbilisi while Aalesund of Norway beat Neath 6-1. Domestically, The New Saints completed a league and cup double and will play in the Champions League while runners-up Bangor, European play-off winners Llanelli and Welsh Cup losing finalists Cefn Druids will compete in the Europa League – Llanelli having qualified for Europe for the seventh successive season. Neath finished third in the Welsh Premier League but, having been refused both domestic and UEFA licences, were then wound up in the High Court.

A week after Coleman took up his new role, the FAW launched its strategic plan and vision for the future of Welsh football. "The message has been clear on the badge for years: Gorau Chwarae Cyd Chwarae – best play is team play. Our messages are clear: greater team work, better communication, a longer term perspective through evolution and winning more." Progress is certainly being made and although qualifying for Brazil 2014 from a group consisting of Scotland, Belgium, Serbia, Croatia and Toshack's Macedonia won't be easy, there could surely be no more lasting legacy to his predecessor if, with the help of such established stars as Craig Bellamy, Aaron Ramsey and Gareth Bale, Coleman managed to pull it off.

NORTHERN IRISH FOOTBALL 2011–12

Internationally a far from memorable season but domestically yet another glory, glory one for Linfield, their sixth Irish League and Cup double in seven years – a remarkable ratio.

Crusaders, known as "the Working Man's club", made an immense impact winning the Setanta All Ireland Sports Cup, defeating Derry City in a dramatic penalty shoot-out, but form temporarily slumped when outclassed 4-1 by Linfield in the IJB Sports Irish Cup Final.

For manager Stephen Baxter – nicknamed Stanley after the Scottish comedian – it had been a phenomenal year operating on a limited budget. Players gave him the utmost support and commitment while management revealed a progressive outlook in refurbishing Seaview with further improvements ongoing. It is a policy which paid off.

Linfield's David Jeffrey, "The Special One", picked up the Manager of the Year award and other accolades by numerous supporters clubs. He is now about to overtake the 30 trophy record of his mentor Roy Coyle, currently Football Director at arch rivals Glentoran.

Irish football needs a charismatic character such as "Big Davy" who has the ability to motivate players, make them walk tall and provide the media with forthright and controversial comment.

It has been a nightmare scenario, however, for the Glens and their former manager Scott Young. They failed to win a major trophy which, by their normal standards, can only be described as catastrophic.

Eddie Patterson, ex-Cliftonville, who has succeeded Young, faces a formidable challenge to restore pride and prestige at a club experiencing serious cash difficulties. The Glens, pride of East Belfast, whose presence is vital to a competitive Irish Premiership, are determined to get back on track and according to officials, have ambitious plans to sell the Oval and relocate at a new stadium within the next few years.

Agreement was reached with Linfield, owners of Windsor Park, the international football stadium, to stage Northern Ireland matches and other events there. It replaced the old one which had been operational since the fifties and had a couple of decades still to run. Linfield, negotiated a 51-year lease with the Irish FA for the administration of the stadium which will be run by a separate company and whose responsibility also includes upkeep and maintenance of the facilities.

The entire project will cost £29.5m funded primarily by the government and should be completed by 2016. Linfield have been guaranteed £200,000 per annum; they will play all their matches at Windsor Park, a name that is sacrosanct and must be included in any commercial naming agreement. The Blues will have their own administrative and social accommodation and the Irish FA staff will also be located there. Midgley Park, the reserve pitch area and city council's leisure centre are not included in the new arrangements but, perhaps sooner rather than later, they will be incorporated, making Windsor Park one of the top drawer sporting facilities in Ireland. Irish FA President Jim Shaw predicts: "When completed, Windsor will be a model for others to follow."

Huge progress has been made in developing youth, junior and women's football. The grass roots and community relations departments are surging ahead, but alas, controversy still exists over the Republic "poaching" young players who have been developed through the Northern Ireland coaching system up to Under-21 level and then opt for the Republic.

There does not appear to be an easy solution to the problem. Players are free to make their own choice and it is not illegal under FIFA rules. Once a player appears for a country in a competitive fixture, there can be no going back. The die is cast.

Another World Cup qualifying series is just around the corner. Northern Ireland are in the same group as Russia, Portugal, Israel, Azerbaijan and Luxembourg. Qualifying for the finals in Brazil 2014 seems remote; a mission impossible. But manager Michael O'Neill assures everyone the approach will be positive.

Ballinamallard United, a junior side from County Fermanagh who won promotion to the Irish Premiership, promise entertaining football measuring up to all opposition. They have been the real success story of Irish football 2012.

EUROPEAN FOOTBALL REVIEW 2011–12

Given that as soon as Villas-Boas had had his chips at Stamford Bridge, the media decided to write off the ageing Chelsea squad as a threat either at home or abroad, the fact that the Blues went on to win the Champions League against pretty formidable odds, it was the minimal digital salute to the wiseacres. In fairness there were no disparaging remarks aimed at Roberto Di Matteo, handed the hot potato.

Yet the knock-out round seemed to have put an end to it. Trailing by two goals away to Napoli, Chelsea turned it round and had an impressive 4-1 win at home. It got better, generally here and there against Benfica, then the epic semi-final clashes with Barcelona, said to be the finest team on this and any planet, indeed of all time. A precious leveller at The Bridge, an amazing rearguard action and subsequent draw with ten men at the heart of Catalonia stunned the critics.

Even the final was gained the hard way. On Bayern Munich's own pitch and needing a shoot-out to take the trophy, there were heroes all round with Petr Cech at one end, Didier Drogba at the other at the forefront. It was just as well for Chelsea abroad; the rest of the English entry fared less spectacularly.

Arsenal put up a tremendous fightback against AC Milan. Having conceded four goals in Italy they pulled three back at the Emirates and came close to forcing extra time at the elimination point. But neither of the Mancunian clubs excelled in top company. Both failed to finish higher than third at the group stage and were banished to the Europa League only for Manchester City and Manchester United respectively to lose out to Sporting Lisbon and Athletic Bilbao in the third round.

There was increased representation for the Europa with the addition of Birmingham City, winners of the Carling Cup but relegated to the Football League Championship, Fulham, Stoke City and Tottenham Hotspur all involved.

Fulham, no strangers to the competition, as beaten finalists in 2010, were in from the first qualifying round and were not disgraced in losing at the group stage in what was their fourteenth match. Neither did Birmingham, remembered from flying the flag for the city in the old Fairs Cup, neglect to put in a good shift in Group H.

Stoke City, beginning at the third qualifying round, surprised everyone except themselves by negotiating Group E successfully before losing out to Valencia in the second round. However, Tottenham Hotspur disappointed in their group section.

Scotland's effort fell away even earlier in the Champions League. Rangers, before the club disintegrated as an entity, were even defeated at Ibrox by Malmo, then Maribor in the Europa before exit. In the Europa League Celtic were granted a reprieve after losing to Sion, when the Swiss team was thrown out for fielding ineligible players. But again only third place was reached in the group stage.

Hearts, starting in the third qualifying round, showed better staying power before conceding five goals to Spurs in the play-off round. Dundee United in the second qualifying round were unfortunate to lose on the away goals rule to Slask Wroclaw.

For Wales, Bangor City conceded ten goals away to HJK Helsinki in the Champions League, Northern Ireland's champions Linfield held BATE Borisov in one leg of their tie but Shamrock Rovers famously battled on for the Republic into the Europa and Group A.

Overall in the Europa, Cliftonville held The New Saints in one leg, the Welsh team in turn going out to Midtjylland. Glentoran beat Renova in a penalty shoot-out before bowing to Vorskla. Neath went out quietly but Llanelli surprised Dinamo Tbilisi at home. St Patrick's Athletic and Sligo Rovers each negotiated two rounds.

What about Europe's teams? Champions League favourites Barcelona (as we know) and Real Madrid slipped up in the semi-finals, but at least Spain was represented in the Europa final where Atletico beat Athletic in the double AA affair.

INTERNATIONAL DIRECTORY

The latest available information has been given regarding numbers of clubs and players registered with FIFA, the world governing body. Where known, official colours are listed. With European countries, League tables show a number of signs. * indicates relegated teams, + play-offs, *+ relegated after play-offs, ++ promoted.

There are 209 member associations. The four home countries, England, Scotland, Northern Ireland and Wales, are dealt with elsewhere in the Yearbook; but basic details appear in this directory. The following countries are not members of FIFA: Gibraltar, Kosovo, and Northern Cyprus.

There are a number of associate members and others who have affiliation to their confederations, but there is only one recent official addition and that is South Sudan. Of the many affiliated countries, they include Northern Mariana Islands, Reunion, Zanzibar, French Guiana, Saint-Martin, Sint Maarten, Kiribati, Niue and Tuvalu.

EURO 2012 FINALS REVIEW

Spanish masters boring? Yes, but only drilling devastatingly through the Italian defence to become a four-goal five-star class above everyone. Two banks of three in midfield and movement all over, first a cut-back by Cesc Fabregas for David Silva to head in, then Xavi's penetrating pass for Jordi Alba to gallop for number two. Second half goals were made in Stamford Bridge: Torres with the first and an assist from him to substitute Juan Mata for the second. To their credit Italy, down to ten through injury, behaved. A World Cup squeezed between two Euro titles, where next for Spain?

The group stages had provided the eyebrow-raising demise of Holland in two years since being runners-up in the World Cup. Though they lost by just one goal in each match, their overall performance was depressing. Robin Van Persie managed a goal, but was otherwise a shadow of the predatory Premier League sharp-shooter.

Conversely, Germany also in Group B won all three games, the only team so to do. Physical presence personified, they appeared comfortably in control. However, another surprise was the disintegration of the Russians, though their 4-1 win over the Czech Republic in the opener was flattering. They drew with Poland, the co-hosts, but then unexpectedly conceded to Greece, the real shakers in Group A. The Greeks began in the only ten-a-side affair drawing with the Poles before losing to the better-displays-than-results Czechs.

The bright-starting Danes in Group B faded, Portugal's ratings swung depending on the Cristiano Ronaldo mood. Off colour in one, then taking on the opposition single-handedly – and winning – in another. Spain, holders, World Cup winners and the favourites in Group C, had a quiet opening, playing possession and apparently unwilling to lose the ball by taking a shot at goal. Fielding a team without a striker in two of the matches yet scoring four in the one game with Fernando Torres in the starting line-up, albeit against the out-of-touch Republic of Ireland.

The Italians did hold the Spaniards in the first game but were unable to beat Croatia in another 1-1 and needed the win over the ten-finishing Irish to continue. Yet England were encouraged by taking the lead against the fancied French and gaining a deserved draw. Co-hosts Ukraine were boosted by two goals from Andrij Shevchenko to edge Sweden, only to concede a couple to France. In an exciting tussle with the Swedes, England took the lead, went behind and then sneaked it with a fluky back-heel from Danny Welbeck. But they all count. Though the returning Rooney headed in from a couple of inches, Ukraine missed the target from decent scoring positions. Thus neither co-host reached the last eight. France, already qualified, lost to Sweden.

Herald the quarter-finals: Portugal with Ronaldo almost back to his unplayable best, just edged it over an under-the-cosh Czech team, stretched for long periods. Germany, brimming with confidence, even rested a few players with the veteran Miroslav Klose as spearhead for his 120th cap. Greece even levelled early in the second half but eventually conceded four goals though converted a penalty harshly awarded for handling.

Spain decided to revert to their "ghost-striker" formation with six in midfield against France. They were at their most irritating and, camped in the first third of the French half, they dictated play without any real penetration. A downward header from Xabi Alonso opened the score and he finished it from the penalty spot. Then it was England against the Italians, who hit a post early on and enjoyed more possession, but lacked decisiveness. And so into extra time before penalties emerged and ended with England's poor shoot-out record confirmed.

The first semi-final also went to penalties. Spain – edging it over 120 minutes – and Portugal knew too much about each other and it was tediously scrappy. Only two real chances, one at either end: Rui Patricio spilled one but recovered; then in a swift four-against-two counter-attacking move, Ronaldo missed the target. He was also the fifth (unused) penalty taker! Yet the shock came in the other match.

Once Mario Balotelli had headed Italy into a surprise lead over the Germans, they were always the more dangerous team and deservedly added to the score after a defence-splitting aerial launch that the Manchester City striker duly despatched. Germany, denied an early penalty, had one awarded late on which was not an offence.

The Spanish national team celebrate winning the European Championship trophy after beating Italy 4-0 in the final in Kiev on 1st July.

WOMEN'S FOOTBALL 2011–12

These days fans of women's football can double their chances of enjoyment. This is because the women's game is now an all-year-round entertainment thanks to the funding of the Football Association. In the traditional winter period it is the FA Women's Premier League and in the summer the professional Women's Super League (WSL) takes over. The Women's FA Cup is a cross-over between the two as it is an open competition and the 2011–12 Cup was won by WSL side Birmingham City Ladies who defeated fellow WSL Chelsea in the final held on the 26 May 2012 at Ashton Gate, Bristol. It was the first of these finals ever to go to a penalty shoot-out after the sides had drawn 2-2 following extra time. The scorers were Helen Lander (70 mins) and Kate Longhurst (101 mins) for Chelsea and Rachel Williams (91 mins) and Karen Carney (112 mins) for City; and when the inevitable penalties were taken Birmingham triumphed by three strikes to two, to win the FA Cup for the first time in their history.

There was no change in the pecking order for the inaugural season of the WSL with Arsenal Ladies (the most successful club ever in women's football) annexing the title in 2011. But it was a close run thing with victory only assured on the last day of the season. Arsenal beat Liverpool by 3-1 while Birmingham could only draw. This gave the Gunners the championship by 3 points over long-time leaders Birmingham with Everton finishing third. Arsenal went on to also win the first cup for teams in the WSL – the "Continental Cup" sponsored by Continental – again coming out the better of their nearest rivals Birmingham Ladies by 4-1 on Burton Albion's ground. The concluding WSL competition was the Reserve Subsidiary Cup in which Chelsea beat West Ham by 4-2.

The season itself was split in two because of England's participation in the Women's World Cup and the current season is likewise divided the same way to accommodate the Olympics. However, the FA's Kelly Simmons, who had done so much to get the League up and running, professed herself delighted that it had proved to be a "competitive achievement" and was further happy that "so many families, especially young girls, came to the matches making it a fun day out and more than just a game". In addition each of the eight clubs has a "Digital Ambassador" which has proved a very successful way to build a following on both the social media sites Facebook and Twitter.

The Women's Premier League competition saw the National Division won by Sunderland one point ahead of Leeds United with Reading and Nottingham Forest relegated. In the Northern Division just like their men's counterparts Manchester City were the champions five points clear of Sheffield United with Rotherham and Leeds City Vixens relegated, the latter both extraordinarily and sadly losing all their 18 matches. The Southern title went to Portsmouth who were 4 points beyond the reach of Colchester United with Plymouth Argyle and Keynsham Town taking the drop. In the several Divisions of the Reserve Leagues, Mid/North (1) was won by Everton; Mid/North (2) had Nottingham Forest the winners; Southern (1) was another success for Arsenal Ladies and Southern (2) became Cardiff City's honour .

The FA Women's Premier League Cup saw Sunderland Ladies complete a Cup and League "double" when they defeated Leeds United Ladies 2-1 in a match held on 6 May 2012 at Sixfields Stadium, Northampton. Two Natalie Gutteridge headers saw them home although Leeds did score a late consolation by virtue of a Carey Huegett penalty. The Wearsiders failed to pull off a "treble" when In the Premier League Reserve Cup Final they were defeated 3-0 by Everton.

The much anticipated Olympics will play a very big part in women's football in 2012 when for the first time a Great Britain side will take part. Led by Head Coach Hope Powell of England, a squad of 16 English and 2 Scottish women will have the honour of kicking off their campaign against New Zealand at the Millennium Stadium, Cardiff on 25 July 2012, two days before the Opening Ceremony. Their remaining qualifying games are against Cameroon and 2008 silver medallists Brazil. Domestically Powell oversaw her 150th match as England National Coach in June 2012 and England are currently one win away from qualification for the 2013 European Championships.

Individual items of merit to note include Amy Fearn being selected to referee the UEFA Women's Under 17 Championship final between France and Germany in Switzerland; Arsenal's Rachel Yankey equalling Doncaster Belles' Gillian Coultard's England international appearances record with her 119th cap against Slovenia in June 2012; and Leanne Hall, the ex-England 'keeper who has completed her FA Goalkeeper's A Licence which has made her the first female to attain both that and the outfield UEFA A Licence.

KEN GOLDMAN

Birmingham City's Ladies' Karen Carney goes close with a header against Chelsea Ladies' goalkeeper Carly Telford in the FA Women's Cup Final at Ashton Gate. The game finished 2-2 after extra time, Birmingham winning 3-2 on penalties. (PA)

FOOTBALL CLUB CHAPLAINCY

Younger or more recent readers of the Sky Sports Football Yearbook may perhaps not be aware that some thirty per cent of our current Premier and Football League clubs owe their very existence to a church or Sunday school, or an individual clergyman. That being so, at those clubs today the involvement of a chaplain is a perfectly natural expectation. Many other clubs involve a local clergyman when the need for him arises, so that a relationship grows up between them or circumstances encourage or permit.

Of course, the fact used to be that many clubs were decidedly reticent about their origins or links with a church or parson, but that has now changed, and whilst there remain a number of League clubs that have never had a chaplain (or have resolutely declared that they never will have one!), almost always today, a club that has experienced the benefits of such an appointment will testify to its value.

And don't forget that some clubs have had a chaplain (though the current one may not be the original one!), for nearly fifty years: that fact is beyond contradiction and speaks volumes about the value a clergyman is able to provide to a major football club.

OBITUARIES

Gary Ablett (Born Liverpool, 19 November 1965. Died 1 January 2012.) Gary Ablett was a versatile defender who made over 100 senior appearances for three clubs, Liverpool, Everton and Birmingham City, and won international honours for England at U21 level. He established a reputation as a solid and reliable defender at Anfield and was a member of the team defeated by Wimbledon in the 1988 FA Cup final. He returned to Wembley 12 months later and this time secured a winners' medal as the Reds defeated Merseyside rivals Everton after extra time. He later joined the Toffees, winning a second Cup winners' medal in 1995 before concluding his career with spells at Birmingham City, Blackpool and in the USA with Long Island Rough Riders. On retiring as a player he coached with both Everton and Liverpool, then had a spell as manager of Stockport County, before returning to coaching at Ipswich.

Jimmy Adamson (Born Ashington, Northumberland, 4 April 1929. Died 8 November 2011.) Jimmy Adamson developed in junior football in the North East before joining the Clarets as a professional in January 1947. He made his first-team debut in February 1951 and immediately established himself in the line-up, remaining as a regular for the next 11 seasons.
